McAllister performed his duties as a Rifle Company First Sergeant in an outstanding manner... McAllister's leadership always demanded and attained the highest standards while showing that he saw each soldier as an individual and looked after each and every one of their problems. During two major field exercises, at Fort Campbell and Fort Irwin, his company was always administratively and logistically prepared to accomplish its mission. McAllister was always present to provide tactical guidance to his commander and to the NCO's of his unit..

God has told us His secret reason for sending Christ, a plan He decided on in mercy long ago; and this was His purpose: that when the time is ripe He will gather us all together from wherever we are in heaven or on earth to be with Him in Christ forever.

Dr. King stated, "I am not fearing any man. Mine eyes have seen the Glory of the Coming of the Lord."

In 1968 I was on this mountaintop (photo) in South Vietnam, when I received the news of Dr. King's death. I later asked the Lord why was I in Vietnam when Dr. King was assassinated. God's reply was, "I have preserved you, because we must do it again." I said, "WHAT LORD, a march of Freedom?" The "Let Freedom Ring" has been done.

In order for freedom to ring, it is vitally important that everyone knows who they are, where they fit into the whole and their function.

This is an important principle in every walk of life including God and the military. They must not be confused about the branch of service in which they serve. I was in the Airborne Infantry Division of the United States Army; dedicated to their mission regardless to what the mission may be. We must celebrate who we are and receive the proper identification. Each branch of the military have their own command, order and unit of assignment at different levels. Every soldier must know and understand their Commander and Chief, his representatives and the Chain of Command. One must receive the representative as receiving the Commander and Chief. What is a command? A command is the authority that is given to a Commander. Authority must be exercised in order for sovereignty to be released and to accomplish the purpose within the command. All are called to serve in the command, but not all are called to command. The following are elements of command:

(1) the Commander (2) the recipient(s) (3) the action(s)

Within the elements there must be an attitude of command and that is a willingness to be:

(1) instructed (2) willingness to change to benefit (3) willing to be loyal and faithful (4) willing to endure within until the end of the required time of the assignment.

Within the command are training requirements to establish and maintain a standard of preparedness for the mission of the command. Training requirements are established according to the command's mission statement.

THERE MUST BE A NEW APPROACH TO EDUCATION, AND A NEW APPROACH TO CAPITALISM

If we are going to have a chance of changing the people who have no way of expressing their needs in ways that matter to the marketplace, there must be another level of innovation. We need a system of innovation that reaches everyone.

Such a system would have a two fold mission; making profits, and also improving lives of those who don't fully benefit from today's market forces.

This innovation is, "Creative Capitalism, an approach where governments, business, and non-profits work together to stretch the market forces so that more people can make a profit, or gain recognition doing work that eases the world's inequities".

This new approach requires a whole new approach to education and science - an approach that focuses on the increase development of people and not just products.

"Except Humanity Exceeds Technology we will continue to be in bondage to what we create"
